

Content Research Statement

We researched autism and what triggers children who are on the spectrum have. We also researched the many behaviors and tendencies that autistic children have. The spectrum is very broad, far broader than we initially realized. Other research included what needs autistic children have, how they interact with other people and what stimuli can affect them in positive or negative ways. As we continue on with this project we will need to look more into the specifics of autism and how it affects children, along with how to implement that into our game and get the message we are trying to convey across in a way that helps non-autistic children understand autism.
